MY NAME IS BOND !

After 50 years, over 30 books and 20 films, the world and espionage have changed but James Bond is still Bond, the world's most famous secret agent. And millions of fans are very happy.

5

James Bond was created by British author Ian Fleming in 1953 when Western democracies and Communist countries were enemies. The West and the East wanted the best nuclear weapons<sup>1</sup> and spies<sup>2</sup> to help their countries get information about what the enemy was doing.

Ian Fleming was from a rich family and before World War II worked as a journalist, then as a banker. In 1939, he joined Royal Navy intelligence<sup>3</sup> and became a spy. He organised espionage missions. Some of his ideas were crazy while the others were successful. He helped to form the American organisation which became the CIA.

10

Bond was the perfect Cold War spy. How could he survive after the Berlin Wall disappeared in 1989 ? The answer is : "very well, thank you" ! By 1989, Bond was an industry, and one of Britain's best exports.

The recent films are not based on Fleming books, but use their characters and the successful formula of action : humour, beautiful women and terrible villains.
